PROPERTY DESCRIPTION

A rare opportunity to acquire a truly distinctive converted mill, rich in heritage and character, set on a large plot with beautifully established gardens with a tranquil stream running through the grounds.

Held in the same ownership since 1979, this remarkable home has been sympathetically renovated to preserve its historic integrity while offering comfortable, character-filled living. At the very centre of the property is a truly striking reception hall, where the original mill workings take pride of place. The illuminated flywheel and gearing form a dramatic and rare focal point—an impressive architectural statement that immediately sets the tone for the rest of this unique home.

The main house provides spacious and versatile accommodation, including three bedrooms, one with en-suite facilities, a family bathroom, and three reception rooms. The elegant drawing room features a traditional Manx stone fireplace and leads to a mezzanine level, enhancing both space and visual appeal. A dining room with direct access to the gardens creates an ideal setting for entertaining, while the well-appointed kitchen is fitted with ample cabinetry and integrated appliances.

The surrounding grounds are a particular highlight, offering privacy, established planting, and a peaceful waterside setting that enhances the property's sense of seclusion and charm.

In addition, the property includes a detached two-bedroom cottage. While full of potential, the cottage would now benefit from a programme of updating, presenting an excellent opportunity for purchasers to add value or create bespoke guest or ancillary accommodation.

Located in the desirable area of Baldrine, this is a rare chance to acquire a home of genuine historical interest, where original mill features are not just preserved, but celebrated as a central design element.

Viewing is essential to fully appreciate the uniqueness and setting of this outstanding property.
